Controversy Over Bridge

Both Brownsville and South Brownsville Want to Say Where it Will Go

Exceptions have been filed by the Monongahela Bridge company of Brownsville and by several Brownsville and other interested citizens to the report of the viewers on the location for a joint county bridge over the Monongahela river between South Brownsville and West Brownsville, on the site of the old wooden bridge which was condemned recently by the War Department and was torn down.

The Monongahela Bridge company of which George W. Lenhart is president, claims that for the two counties to build the bridge would be a confiscation of property as the company claims this site by right of a franchise which was granted to it in 1832

STREET TO BE WIDENED BY BOROUGH

North Charleroi Will Establish Lines Along Lincoln

ESTIMATE OF SIDEWALKS

At the meeting of North Charleroi council Monday night the street committee made a report on the matter of establishing a street line on Lincoln avenue, and the report was accepted. Action was taken to have a street line established widening the street almost its entire length from the 28 or 30 feet at present to 40 feet or more.

The borough solicitor was instructed to provide for the collection of liens against the Library association. Jasper Rockwell was instructed to ascertain the probable cost of sidewalks for Lincoln avenue. A number of property owners have not laid their sidewalks and the borough may proceed to do the work, to later assess the cost.

Action was taken to the effect that a proposition be submitted to D. M. McCloskey, attorney for the Dowd estate, for a settlement for damages claimed by the latter people.

Following the meeting of council a committee consisting of Messrs. Rockwell, Shafer, Nebulung, Sloan and Gaskill from council made a computation of the amount of money due the borough by the Pittsburgh Railways company for paving work which the latter paid for. A previous computation had been made and this was found to be correct.

FACILITIES TO BE INCREASED THROUGH TANK IMPROVEMENTS

Macbeth-Evans Glass Company to Enlarge Furnace This Summer--Department to be Closed Brief While

With conditions "never better" a busy run is planned at the local plant of the Macbeth-Evans Glass company. The factory has been running up to its limit the year around and to increase facilities for the production of glass ware, improvements are being started now at the tank. These improvements will be finished probably in July, and will necessitate a closing of that part of the plant for three or four weeks. The entire factory will be closed for about 10 days to allow the annual stock-taking.

In the tank department the furnace is to be enlarged. While there will be no substantial increase in the working force, the capacity will be increased largely. Later, it is probable, additions will be made to enable the large plant to care for its increasing trade.

The close-down for stock-taking will occur the latter part of this month or the first of July, so as to take in the Fourth of July.

At present about 1,500 people are employed at Macbeth-Evans plant. This is the largest factory of several owned by the company and ranks as Charleroi's biggest industry. The monthly pay roll averages $60,000 practically the year around.

RUMOR OF BIG COAL DEAL CONFIRMED BY JUDGE GARY

Steel Corporation Purchases Western Pennsylvania Coal Lands But Papers Are Not Yet Signed

Judge Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the U. S. Steel corporation in New York Monday confirmed the report published in the Mail about three weeks ago of a big coal deal with the Pittsburgh Coal company. Judge Gary said:

"We have agreed to purchase 17,000 acres of coking coal on about 35 years' time. The papers have not yet been signed."

Seven thousand of the 17,000 acres mentioned by the Steel corporation's head are owned by the Pittsburgh Coal company and are located in the Connelville region. The remaining 10,000 acres are owned by the River Coal company. The price consideration is said to be in the neighborhood of $18,000,000, a considerably smaller sum than was suggested at first as the possible cost to the Steel corporation. Of this great sum it is believed that about $10,000,000 will be paid for the Pittsburgh company's average and $8,000,000 for the River company's holdings.

It is stated that the coal is wanted for the big new plant at Gary, Indiana. When this plant was constructed it was the intention to use the coal from the Illinois field. This coal, it is reported is found to be deficient in steam producing and coke qualities as compared with the Pittsburgh coal, and for that reason the corporation seeks to get a supply in the Pittsburgh district. When this deal is completed it is expected that mining developments and production will be given a big impetus in this district.

TWO MANY BALLS ARE BEING LOST

Church League Has Spent About $70 on Them Since Season Opened

At the weekly meeting of the Church Baseball League executive committee held Monday evening, a report was made that since the opening of the baseball season, about $70 worth of baseballs had been purchased many of which had been lost. Action was taken to employ two young men to look after them during each game. Balls are knocked over the fence and in many cases forthwith pocketed by outsiders. Arrests may be made if this thieving is not stopped.

Arrangements were made at the meeting also to observe "Booster" day, on June 19. On this date the Catholics and Methodists will play a game and an admission of 25 cents will be charged.

Names of players approved were Louis Brusa, with the Catholics, W. R. Fleming with the Lutherans, Wm. Donohue, with the Baptists, C. Rodgers and J. Fletcher with the Baptists. Releases approved were Harry Boyd and Samuel Simcox from the Baptists

Gov. Tener Names Men to Look After City's Welfare

LEADERS IN COMMUNITY

Governor John K. Tener Monday night appointed the nine members of the Pittsburgh council who, under the provisions of the new charter bill, will serve until the first Monday in January, 1912. For this period they will be paid at the rate of $6,599 per annum. The list includes multi-millionaires, "near"-millionaires, men whose business affiliations and holdings include some of the larger interests which are a part of the industrial and financial fiber of Pittsburgh. More than that they are men of the highest personal, professional and business integrity, who have been active and prominent in the civic betterment of Pittsburgh.

The appointees are: A. J. Kelly, Jr., President of the Commonwealth Trust company, and agent for the Schenley estate.

D. P. Black, President of the Real Estate Trust company, former President of the Chamber of Commerce and one of the foremost advocates for years of a greater and more prosperous Pittsburgh.

Bell Company to be Permitted to Lay Conduits Underground

FINES ARE HEAVY IN MAY

Burgess George W. Risbeck Reports Many Arrests for Last Month

An ordinance granting the Bell Telephone company the right to lay their conduits underground in the borough passed third and final reading of council last night, and upon the signature of Burgess George W. Risbeck, will become an ordinance. The ordinance was part of one presented some time ago by the company. The vote was 4 to 1 favoring the ordinance. The discussion of the ordinance and the hearing of reports of borough officials occupied considerable attention of council.

Burgess George W. Risbeck made one of the best reports he has ever made to council, money collected in fines and costs considered. He reported that during May 61 arrests had been made, and that the total amount of fines and costs imposed was $130.90, all but $19 being paid. Treasurer E. W. Hastings reported receipts including a loan of $5,000 of $5,947.94 for the month ending May 16. Disbursements were $4,162.48, leaving a balance in the treasury of $1,785.46. Tax Collector J. W. Mathias reported that he had turned over to the treasurer for 1910 taxes the sum of $197.50, and for 1909 taxes amounting to $133.61.

The clerk was instructed to make a complete report of all personal taxes for the year 1909 and to use every means to collect all property taxes for that year at once, to report to council within a few weeks.

The street commissioners and the borough clerk were instructed to notify property owners having bad sidewalks to repair them.

A petition presented by Seraphim Ulinis, James Gee, John Leonard, and Peter Bernard for the opening up of Luella avenue from Third street to the foot of the hill toward Fourth street was placed in the hands of the street committee to investigate and report.

A WISE CHOICE.

Once again have the carping critics of Governor John K. Tener received a severe jolt in the appointment of Pittsburgh's council of nine members, which the new charter enacted by the recent Legislature provides. Governor Tener has selected a body of men noted for high character and personal integrity, as well as successful business qualifications. The list embraces some of the well known Pittsburghers in the highest ranks in banking, business and professional circles, the most of whom have been noted for their public-spirited citizenship and efforts for civic betterment. The choice was made both wisely and well.

The assertion was made that the Governor in making these appointments would play into the hands of the politicians, and for this reason the new charter, which gives the Governor the power to appoint the new council until the next election, was bitterly assailed. It was characterized as un-American and revolutionary for the Governor to appoint for a community their administrators of municipal affairs. It is a question if the people could have chosen so wisely as the Governor has in making his selection, and this remains to be tested when the elections take place in November. All that Pittsburgh has to do to attain civic righteousness is to continue along the lines of the pattern set for them by Governor Tener.

MORE MINING ACTIVITY.

The confirmation of the report that the United States Steel corporation will take over 17,000 acres of coking coal from the Pittsburgh Coal company and the Monongahela Consolidated Coal and Coke company, is cheering news for this community, in which a part of the holdings are located. The natural inference of the impending deal is that the Steel trust is after the coal and coke lands because it has need of the products, and that being the case the development of the holdings which are now lying unproductive will mean more industrial and business activity for this section.

If, as stated, the coal and coke is needed for the big plant at Gary, Indiana, big developments are in store for this section. The Gary plant is the largest concern in the holdings of the big Steel trust, and as it is the most modern and up to date, it will undoubtedly be kept running in preference to older plants in times of industrial depression. That would mean continuous coal mining and coke production in the new territory to be acquired. This makes the mining outlook for the Pittsburgh district more rosy for the future.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

"Forty Years in Baseball" is the title of a book written by Capt. A. C. Anson, former manager of the Chicago National League team which has just been published. The story is a narrative of the experiences of the veteran baseball player, and in it he tells how Governor John K. Tener happened to become a member of the Chicago National League team. Relating this part of the story Capt. Anson says:

"After I had sold Mike Kelly to Boston I was on the keen lookout for a pitcher to take his place, and finally settled on big Mark Baldwin of Pittsburgh, one of the jolliest and most companionable fellows in the business and at times a wonderful twirler, but uneven and easily rattled. All that season of 1887, whenever he had the opportunity—which was pretty often for I found Baldwin excellent company—he went on sounding the praises of a Pittsburgh friend who, he claimed, was the most phenomenal pitcher he ever saw. He said that this wonder's name was John K. Tener and that he worked at bookkeeping, pitching as an amateur whenever he had a holiday. I confess I didn't take much stock in the business, but Mark was so earnest and so persistent that I promised to look into the matter when I had occasion to visit Pittsburgh.

"After the sale of Clarkson to Boston it became absolutely necessary for me to scare up some promising pitching material and I recalled Mark Baldwin's friend. Shortly afterward I happened to be in Pittsburgh—I don't remember that I went on that special business—and I tried to find Tener, but didn't succeed in finding him either at his home or at his place of business. On the day of my departure for home I missed my train, and a few hours on my hands, I proceeded to kill time by strolling about the suburbs.

"Toward the end of the afternoon I ran across a game of ball—played by amateur nines in a vacant patch somewhere on the outskirts of the city.

"I have always been greatly interested in amateur ball, and I joined the bunch that had collected to see the game. It didn't take me two minutes to become deeply interested in the young fellow who was twirling the ball.

"First of all, his unusual appearance arrested my attention. Tall and straight as an Indian, with arms that seemed to be longer even than his very long legs, he poised himself on the balls of his feet, raised his right hand high in the air and then went through with a series of evolutions that made me think of a war dance. Finally, after a dizzy whirl of the sphere grasped firmly with the two first fingers in the fashion afterward made famous by Amos Rusie, he let her go, and I realized right then and there that I, for one, couldn't have batted him without a lot of practice.

"I don't mind telling you that although I stood there and never took my eyes off the twirler until the game was called, I didn't succeed in getting wise to his curve. When it was all over and the boys were putting on their coats I strolled over to the bunch and asked the young giant how he did it.

"How do I do what?" he laughed.

"Make that outcurve," I said.

"It's the easiest ever," he declared.

"To make that outcurve, I grasp the ball firmly with my two first fingers. I make the ball curve with my thumb, which I bring up against the ball with a tight grip. Then I do a lot of stunts to fuddle the batter, and when I get ready to let her go I give a slight side motion to my hand with a decided snap to the wrist. In that way you can get as much speed with a curve as with a straight ball. Don't you think so?"

"I didn't express an opinion. What I did do was to ask him plump out how he would like to go to Chicago and play with the league team.

"First rate," he said. "But Captain Anson don't know what a good pitcher he hasn't got. I always could beat Mark Baldwin, and I hear he is doing big stunts out in Chicago. Perhaps I'll go out there some day and show the captain what I can do. Do you know him?"

"Slightly," I admitted. Then I added: "I know Anson well enough to offer you a position on the Chicago team. All you have got to do is to say 'Yes' or 'No' right now." He looked me over carefully from sole to crown and then, apparently satisfied that I had the goods, said: "Well, make it yes."

"I wanted him to go right away with me that night but he said he was a bookkeeper and couldn't leave his job without proper notice. We made the date for his appearance in Chicago, arranged about his salary and traveling expenses and then, as I was bidding him good evening it occurred to me that it might be convenient to have his name. When he told me that he was John K. Tener I was so amused over the whole business that I turned the trick by letting him know that he had been negotiating with the captain and manager of the Chicago club."

A Joke and a Law.

Tradition is that the habeas corpus act was put on the English statute books as the outcome of a joke at the expense of a bulky lord. It was in the final division in the house of lords, and Lord Grey and Lord Norris were appointed tellers. Lord Norris was not attentive to his duties, and when a very fat lord came in Lord Grey counted the obese person for ten, at first as a joke; but, seeing Lord Norris had not observed, the other noble lord went on with the miscount. By that means, says Bishop Burnet, a sufficient number of votes was secured, and the bill was passed. Long afterward the American colonists took over the act from England.

Made Him Feel Older.

The late Archbishop Ryan illuminated every subject he discussed, and once at a banquet in Philadelphia he illuminated strangely the subject of old age.

"We ourselves," he said, "never seem to grow old. Our hearts remain young, and even our faces in the glass don't look old, as do our friends' faces. One day on Chestnut street a very withered and bent graybeard accosted me.

"Why," he said, "don't you remember me? We were classmates at Carlow college."

Archbishop Ryan paused, then added whimsically: "I was taken aback. I was shocked. I knew he was my age, but I had no idea I was his."—Washington Star.

A Terrifying Hat.

When the French artist Benjamin Constant was traveling in Morocco he was invited by the sultan to present himself at court at Fez. The painter's first thought was in regard to his costume. "Court" in Europe was one thing; in Morocco it was likely to prove something different. There was nothing to do, however, but to wear his ordinary evening clothes. He was ignorant of the fact that the Moors look upon black garments as very vulgar, and it was only after his arrival that he learned his mistake. The courtiers sniggered openly; worst of all, they sneered. The painter was a man of hasty temper, and suddenly, nettled by their insolence, he closed his opera hat and sprang it open in the faces of the jeering crowd. They scattered, yelling with surprise and fear. The sultan heard the noise and demanded the cause. After he had seen and examined the wonderful hat he gave this oracular opinion: "If I had lived a hundred years in your country and adopted all your other customs I could never have brought myself to set on my head so hideous a contrivance as that!"

Painfully Explicit.

The proprietor of a certain hotel in Europe has posted up the following warning to his clients:

"Gentlemen who come in this hotel not say anything about their meals they will be charged for, and if they should say beforehand that they are going out to breakfast or dinner, and if they say that they not have anything to eat they will be charged, or unless they bring it to the notice of the manager, and should they want not to say anything, they must order the manager for, and not any one else, and unless they not bring it to the notice of the manager, they will be charged for the least things not, according to hotel rate. And no fuss will be allowed afterward about it, and nothing will be allowed to deduct anything out of it."

After this explicit information there surely could be no excuse for misunderstanding.—Boston Globe.

Surprising the Bullock.

In times of crisis and worry a kind word has been known to have surprisingly good results. The unexpectedness of such a word is perhaps the secret of its force. A late book, "On the Wool Track," backs the moral with an anecdote.

A team was working on the Broken Hill road, and a bullock—the Beelzebub of the team—had gone obstinate, and the coach was passing. The whip was swinging, and some apt remarks were just forming on the back of the teamster's tongue when he caught sight of a clerical hat on the front seat and just in time thought better of it. He coughed politely.

"Ahem—Strawberry," he said, "proceed."

To his obvious astonishment Strawberry proceeded.

The Indian's Vision.

More or less wonderful accounts have from time to time been given of the powers of vision possessed by savage races. During a British anthropological expedition to the Torres strait the visual faculty of the natives was carefully tested, and from these tests the conclusion was reached that the excellence of vision shown by the savages has a psychological origin—that is to say, it arises from knowing what to look for. When the civilized man acquires familiarity with the environment he can see as far as they can. Thus the power of an Indian to tell the sex of a deer at such a distance that distinguishing features like antlers were invisible was found to rest upon his knowledge of the peculiar gait of the male deer.—Scientific American.

Wondrous Tact.

As an example of graciousness and tact Matthew White tells in Munsey's Magazine of a London clergyman who was called on to address an audience of actors. Alluding to the better social status of the players, the clergyman said that in former days it was sometimes customary to brand them as vagabonds and bore a hole in their ears with an awl, that the citizens might thus be forewarned. "And who knows," the clergyman added, "but that it is a survival of an endeavor to hide this mark of indignity that causes some of the actors even today to wear their hair long?"

Bottles and Rags.

"Bottles and rags, bottles and rags!" called out a rag and bone man as he plied his calling.

"Why do you always put these words together?" asked a passerby.

"Because, madam," replied the man, courteously touching his hat, "wherever you find bottles you find rags!"—London Family Herald.

A Shellfish Thought.

"Funny, isn't it?" "That what?" "That when a fellow's affairs have reached the blue point he never declares that the world is his oyster?"—Judge.

The Ruthless Razor.

Lady Customer (in furniture shop)—What has become of those lovely sideboards you had when I was last here? Salesman (smirking)—I shaved 'em off, madam.

Sympathy.

Cora—Have you seen my new photographs, dear? Every one says they look exactly like me. Dora—What a shame! Can't you get another sitting? Chiefly the mold of a man's fortune is in his own hands.—Bacon.

NESTS IN COLONIES.

Homes of the African Grosbeaks as Big as a Native's Hut.

The biggest bird's nest in the world, not excepting the stork's, is built by the African grosbeak. It is really 100 nests or more bound together with closely interwoven sticks, vines and strands of coarse grass and is not built by a single pair of birds, but by a colony of them. It is of such enormous size that at a little distance it is often mistaken for one of the native huts built in the trees so frequently found in wild tropical countries where man eating animals abound, and the only way to sleep in safety is to "roost high."

The birds usually select a thorn tree, probably because of the protection afforded by the sharp, long thorns against marauders. All around the nest the roof of sticks, thatched with dry grass, projects to let the rain run off. A deep fringe of grass hangs from this cornice like a curtain to keep out any stray drops. These great nests are added to from year to year, each pair of mated birds building on the main nest. Sometimes the nest becomes too heavy, and the branch breaks or the great mass of sticks falls to the ground, destroyed by its own weight. The grosbeak is no larger than an English sparrow and just as gregarious.—New York Press.

Honesty Extraordinary.

A traveler writing in an Italian magazine says that the Swiss canton of Ticino is inhabited by the most honest folk it is possible to imagine. In most of the Ticinese villages, the writer says, the oldest inhabitants do not remember any case of thieving, however petty, within a lifetime. Lost objects when found must never be taken away; they must be left where they were dropped or placed in a conspicuous position so that the rightful owner can find his property more easily. The case is cited of an American woman tourist who lost her purse on an excursion in the Val Capriasca. The purse contained gold coin and a jeweled watch. Upon returning from her trip she found the purse with its contents intact on a little heap of leaves, so placed that it could not fail to attract her attention.—New York Sun.

The Parsees of India.

It was at a point near the ancient city of Surat that the Parsees first landed in India when driven out of Persia by their Mohammedan conquerors eleven centuries ago. Few things are more remarkable than the manner in which this small community has retained its religion and racial characteristics unchanged during that long period. The peculiar style of head-dress worn by the Parsees is said to have been made compulsory by the Hindu king of India when the Parsees first obtained refuge in that country, and they have used it ever since. Today the Parsees are the leading commercial nation of India.

Hanna and Tom Johnson.

"Let's shake hands and be friends," Mark Hanna suggested to Tom Johnson one day.

"No, let's not," Johnson answered. "Why not?" Hanna demanded.

"We'd make awfully poor friends. We're too good enemies!"—Exchange.

PREPARED FOR DEFEAT.

Precautions General Taylor Took Before Meeting Santa Anna.

Santa Anna was the greatest military leader the Mexicans have ever known. Santa Anna, with 25,000 veterans, went into the battle of Buena Vista with the avowed purpose of exterminating the entire army of the United States, and there was no doubt in the mind of Santa Anna that this great feat could be accomplished with comparative ease. General Taylor, with his 5,000 men, prepared for the unequal contest, and not only defended himself successfully, but won a substantial victory from his aggressive antagonists and drove them from the battlefield of Buena Vista.

Some time after the battle was fought and the Mexican war concluded General Taylor was criticised for having made no preparations for the retreat of his army in the event of defeat. General Taylor promptly replied: "I made every preparation necessary for the battle of Buena Vista. I wrote my will, and so did nearly every man in my army. If we had not won that battle we would have needed no lines of retreat. It was, from our standpoint, victory or annihilation. The only preparation necessary for the contingency of defeat at Buena Vista was that we should write our wills."

MAN AND THE WORLD.

A Very Small Graveyard Would Hold the Whole Human Family.

How little mankind signifies in the scheme of nature is shown by a rather morose calculation of the Italian Professor Zuccarini, who has figured out, among other things, that estimating the world's population as 1,500,000,000 the whole human race at present living could stand comfortably shoulder to shoulder in an area of 500 square miles.

Taking the number of generations in the past 6,000 years as 200, the room taken up by them all on the above plan would only be half the size of Germany, or for the sake of comparison less than the area of the state of Colorado. To bury all the people on earth would need a graveyard little larger than that area.

If the dust left by each body be estimated at one-tenth cubic yard, which is a liberal estimate, it would cover only forty square miles to a depth of about three feet. This certainly seems insignificant compared with the great coral reefs and other immense deposits built up by the shells of tiny infusoria.—New York Sun.

His Security.

When Eben Foster asked Squire Lane to lend him $200 to invest in the dry goods business the squire dryly inquired what Mr. Foster had to offer him in the way of security.

"Security?" said Eben, with an air of injured dignity. "Well, squire, I'll tell you what I have to offer—three solid silver teaspoons, a handsome brass warming pan, a pair of decalcomany vases, large size, and the material for as much as three feather beds. If not four, right on the backs of my flock of geese, and five Plymouth Rock hens.

"You can call 'em all yours till I pay the money back, an' I'll take care of 'em for you free of charge. I don't know what anybody could want more'n that for security."—Youth's Companion.

The American Indian.

The old question of the origin of the red man of America is still an open one, the last word by no means having been said. The most probable theory is that which links the Indian with the Mongoloids of East Africa, whose physical characteristics are strikingly similar to those of the American aborigine. Between the Indian and the Japanese there are many pronounced resemblances, and some excellent authorities are of the opinion that it was from that eastern race that the Indian originally sprang. If, as some think, the Eskimos are the best representatives of the Indian as he was upon his arrival here, the theory of the Japanese origin is immensely strengthened, since the likeness between the Eskimo and the Japanese is striking indeed.—New York American.

Logic of the Land.

A specimen of rustic reasoning which is too good to lose is recorded in Mr. R. L. Gales' "Studies in Arcady." "A barber," he says, "was telling me with great gusto how he had refuted an atheist. I inquired what arguments he had employed.

"I asked the atheist," said the barber, "what portion of the Scriptures he based his ideas upon."

"What did he say to that?"

"Never a word."

"The defeat had been crushing and final."

Not Her Kind.

"Have you heard," asked Mrs. Oldcastle, "that Grace Moneylove has married an octogenarian?"

"Mercy sakes!" exclaimed Mrs. Justice. "Is that so? Well, he may be all right, but I want to tell you I've never seen a man who wouldn't eat meat that I'd live with."—Judge.

Not to Blame.

Lady—But this fish isn't fresh! Fish-monger—And whose fault is that? I offered it to you at the beginning of the week and you wouldn't have it then.—London Telegraph.

The mind ought sometimes to be amused that it may the better return to thought and to itself.

SEARCHLIGHT RAYS.

The Effect When the Beams Penetrate a Foggy Atmosphere.

Nearly everybody is familiar with the beam of a searchlight and knows why the beam is visible, while light itself cannot be seen unless it strikes the eye, its visibility being due to particles in the air which really do reflect the light to the eye. On a foggy night, if one will notice, the beam seems to come abruptly to an end if the light is pointed upward. It does this instead of gradually fading away into nothing, as it does pointed horizontally on a uniformly foggy night.

The thing is rather puzzling to one first seeing it, but the reason is not far to seek. Where the end of the beam seems to be there is the place the fog ends, for the beam cannot be visible to us unless there are small particles in its path. This is of great help to sailors in judging of the state of the weather, for they can tell exactly how thick the fog is, or, rather, how deep it is. They can also tell by throwing the light horizontally whether the fog is universal or occurring only in patches, for if extending to a great distance the beam gradually gets dimmer and dimmer, but if in patches the beam is lighter in patches, and if it goes through a place with no fog at all that part of the beam is black or invisible.—New York Tribune.

COFFEE AND TEA.

The Bean Improves With Age, While the Leaf Deteriorates.

Coffee beans improve with age. Five year old coffee is better than the new crop and fetches a higher price in the market. In two years coffee will lose 10 per cent in weight, but it will increase more than 10 per cent in price. Coffee should be used quickly after roasting. If the brown beans appear oily the oil should be dried off in a quick, hot oven; otherwise it will undergo a chemical change which will affect the flavor.

While coffee beans dry with age, teas absorb moisture even when in zinc lined chests. Tea likewise deteriorates with age. It doesn't lose strength so much as it does its drawing quality, which is another name for flavor or bouquet. So careful are the tea packers to insure an entire absence of moisture from the tea when being placed in the zinc or lead lined chests that they have the tea leaves sun dried and then heated before packing. The tea goes into the chests too hot to handle with bare hands and is sealed up in air tight packages before it has time to cool and before the slightest suggestion of moisture reaches it.—New York World.

A Word For Sugar.

Pure candy is good for children. Pure sugar is good for grown people. Of course there are exceptions to every rule. If the doctor prescribes a diet and orders a patient to refrain from sweets the patient is bound to obey his adviser. What is the use of calling a physician and paying him for suggestions if the latter are treated with indifference? People in ordinary health need not be afraid to gratify an appetite which craves sweets. Those who have looked into the matter have been telling us lately that soldiers on the march hold out better if they have rations of sugar than if their food omits this useful commodity. A fondness for sugar is often a defense against the temptation to use alcoholic stimulants. The inebriate does not care very much about pure sweets.—Christian Herald.

The Age of Linen.

It is highly probable that the manufacture of linens is of greater antiquity than that of silk. Archaeologists generally admit that the mummy cloth of the most ancient dynasties was a variety of finest linen. The Egyptian and Jewish priests wore it at all their ceremonies. We find mention of fine linens all through the Old and New Testaments. When the queen of Sheba visited Solomon she was habited in linen. In Revelation the angels are clothed in "pure and white linen." Genesis tells us that Pharaoh arrayed Joseph in vestures of fine linen. Silk is mentioned in the Bible only four times.

The Mystic Seven.

A certain fond father sent his son to the University of Pennsylvania last fall. As a farewell piece of advice he told the young man that "his success was almost assured, since both the word success and your name contain seven letters." The midyear examinations, however, proved to be his doom, and he was compelled to return home. "Well," said his father, "didn't you keep in mind what I told you about the seven letters?"

"I did that, father," answered the boy, "but you must remember that there are also seven letters in failure."—Philadelphia Times.

Money Panic.

"What was the worst money panic you ever saw?" asked one financier of another.

"The worst money panic I ever saw," was the reply, "was when a fifty cent piece rolled under the seat of a street car and seven different women claimed it."—Exchange.

Tyranny.

There are few minds to which tyranny is not delightful. Power is nothing but as it is felt, and the delight of superiority is proportionate to the resistance overcome.—Johnson.

Every production of genius must be the production of enthusiasm.—Dumas.

A MIGHTY REMEDY

Cures Backache, Sideache, and all Kidney, Liver and Bladder Diseases, or Money Back.

Yes money back; that's the offer that W. F. Hennings' the agent in Charleroi makes if Thompson's Barosma fails to cure any of the above named diseases.

And when you stop to think, that's a wonderfully generous offer from the viewpoint of the afflicted, the sick and the suffering.

So if you are ill, have the blues, have lost ambition, have backache or pains in your side, if your urine is high colored, and your eyes dull and complexion sallow, the chances are that your kidneys are weak and clogged up, and that your blood is full of impurities.

So why wait when Thompson's Barosma is guaranteed to restore your health. Get a bottle today at W. F. Hennings'. There are two sizes, 50 cents and $1.00.

Five years ago Charles Schultz of Dunkirk, N. Y. was so weak and run down that he decided to give up his business. He took Barosma, and in a few months he regained his health gained 55 pounds in weight. Today he writes: "I have been in perfect health ever since I wrote you five years ago." All druggists.

JOHN BANISTER.

An English Violinist Who Won Fame in the Seventeenth Century.

Public concerts owe their direct encouragement to John Banister, who had won fame by his playing on the violin and who succeeded the celebrated Baltazar as leader of Charles II.'s band of twenty-four violins. Pepys, in an entry in his diary for February, 1667, tells us the court gossip of the day—"how the king's violinist Banister is mad that the king hath a Frenchman come to be chief of some part of the king's musique."

Banister's concerts at the close of the year 1672 were advertised in the London Gazette as follows: "These are to give notice that at Mr. John Banister's house (now called the musick school, over against the George tavern in White Fryers, the present Monday will be musick performed by excellent masters, beginning precisely at 4 of the clock in the afternoon, and every afternoon for the future precisely at the same hour."

Four years later on we read again, "At the academy in Little Lincoln's Inn Fields will begin the first part of the parley of instruments, composed by Mr. John Banister." The admission was at this time as a rule a shilling, and these concerts seem to have been held pretty regularly down to within a short time of Banister's death, which took place in 1679.—London Graphic.

The Peanut.

The common peanut originally came probably from tropical America. Peanuts were introduced into the United States in the days of the colonies. Botanically the peanut belongs to the same group of plants as beans and peas, but the peanut matures its fruit or nut under the surface of the soil, not above ground, as do most other leguminous plants. Properly speaking, the peanut is a pea rather than a nut, the term "nut" having been added on account of its flavor, which is similar to that of many of the true nuts. The peanut is known under the local names of goober, goober pea, pindar, groundpea and groundnut.

Greenland's Exclusiveness.

Greenland, with its icy mountains, is very exclusive, and so far from inviting visitors, it even makes it inconvenient for tourists to land on the little bit of occasionally green land that surrounds its great heart of perpetual ice. Permission must be had from Denmark. Denmark is, indeed, very careful and conservative in the management of Greenland affairs. The trade there is monopolized by the state, and only government vessels are welcomed to Greenland waters. This is to protect the Greenlanders from unscrupulous merchants. The state also fixes both the price they shall pay for food and the price they shall sell at.

Saves Time For His Wife.

They were discussing their husbands, neither of whom was distinguished for his domesticity.

"My husband amuses me," said the hostess, "by the excuses he has for being detained downtown of evenings. Sometimes I can almost hear his brain working out an excuse as he tiptoes up the stairs."

"My husband," said the caller, "is different. He is a very systematic man, you know, and some time ago he wrote out a list of various excuses and numbered them. Now, when he comes in he just calls up the stairs, 'No. 4,' or 'No. 20,' or whatever the number may be."—Judge.

ANIMALS' TOILETS.

Fur Seals Are as Particular as Women in Fixing Up.

The cat carries her clothesbrush in her mouth, for with her rough tongue she cleanses her glossy coat as a boy brushes off his clothes. She licks one of her front paws and rubs it over her face and she is ready for her break fast.

Foxes, dogs and wolves do not use their mouths when they need to wash and brush, but scratch themselves vigorously with their hind paws and are as fresh as ever.

The cow with her long, rough tongue combs her coat of hair until it is clean and curly. The horse more than any other animal depends on his owner to keep his coat in proper condition, but often he will roll on the green grass or rub himself down against a tree or fence.

Field mice comb their hair with their hind legs, and the fur seal in a similar manner spends as much time as a woman in making herself look smart.

Although the elephant appears to be thick skinned and callous, he takes great care of his skin. He often gives himself a shower bath by drawing water into his long trunk and blowing it on the different parts of his body. After the bath he sometimes rolls himself in a toilet preparation of dust to keep off the flies.—Our Dumb Animals

Robespierre's Style of Dress.

Robespierre's manner of dress, even at the period when the demagogues affected the slovenliness and disorder of indigence in order to flatter the people, was clean, decent and precise as that of a man who respects himself in the eyes of others. His white powdered hair, turned up in clusters over his temples; a bright blue coat buttoned over his hips, open over the breast to display a white vest; short yellow colored breeches, white stockings and shoes with silver buckles, formed his invariable costume during the whole of his public life. It was said that he desired by thus never varying the style or color of his garments to make the same impression in the sight and imagination of the people as a medal of his face would have caused.—Lamarline's "History of the Girondists"

CHARLEROI PLAYERS

MAKE GOOD IN OHIO

Arch Osborne and "Bob" New- ton Have Things Humminb at Lima

According to the Lima, Ohio papers
Charleroi players who are with the Lima team are making things lively in the Ohio league. Arch Osborne, of Charleroi is manager and is pitching winning ball. He has gathered about him one of the strongest aggregations of ball tossers seen in Lima for some time, and is getting results.

"Bob" Newton, the son of "Squire" Newton is making good. "Bob" is capturing everything that comes his way down at third base. At bat he makes the pitchers work. Although sixth in the batting order, he is getting about as many real hits as the rest of them and they count too.
"Bob" rarely fans the vacancy.

BASEBALL BINGLES

Manager Swearingen of the Lutherans chuckled after the down-pour Monday night over the fact that there were 12 Lutheran players in uniform on the field. "Such a hard working, enthusiastic bunch of boys surely deserve to win," said Manager Sam to a spectator.

Three postponed games are now to be played off in the Church League, including that at last night between the Lutherans and the First Presbyterians. The Lutherans seem to be the bad weather boys. The game between them and the Washington Avenues is another postponed game.

The game postponed by reason of a tie between the Baptists and the First Presbyterians will be played next Wednesday, June 14. On the following Wednesday, June 21, the Washington Avenues and the Lutherans are scheduled to play, and it is likely that the game postponed from last night will be set for June 27.

The Lutherans have a new battery—Hartland and Baker—which they intended to use Monday evening.

WILL HOLD SOCIAL AFFAIR AS BENEFIT

The Charleroi Juvenile Court committee, composed of Mrs. J. K. Tener,
Mrs. E. C. Niver, and Mrs. A. W. Day will give a "500" party at the Elks Home Friday afternoon, June 9 at 2 o'clock. The object is to secure funds to defray the expenses of the committee in taking care of the delinquent children that come under the jurisdiction of the committee. The county pays only the expense of securing the commitment papers and transportation, but the expense of employing someone to take the children to court has to be borne by voluntary contribution. Scarcely a week passes that the committee does not have to incur expense in looking after waifs, and for this reason asks the public to patronize a worthy charity.

attack on the city. Great conflagrations, together with the capture of the wooden horse in which the attacking soldiers were concealed are shown.

Controversy Over Bridge

Both Brownsville and South Brownsville Want to Say Where it Will Go

Exceptions have been filed by the Monongahela Bridge company of Brownsville and by several Brownsville and other interested citizens to the report of the viewers on the location for a joint county bridge over the Monongahela river between South Brownsville and West Brownsville, on the site of the old wooden bridge which was condemned recently by the War Department and was torn down.

The Monongahela Bridge company of which George W. Lenhart is president, claims that for the two counties to build the bridge would be a confiscation of property as the company claims this site by right of a franchise which was granted to it in 1892.

STREET TO BE WIDENED BY BOROUGH

North Charleroi Will Establish Lines Along Lincoln

ESTIMATE OF SIDEWALKS

At the meeting of North Charleroi council Monday night the street committee made a report on the matter of establishing a street line on Lincoln avenue, and the report was accepted. Action was taken to have a street line established widening the street almost its entire length from the 28 or 30 feet at present to 40 feet or more.

The borough solicitor was instructed to provide for the collection of liens against the Livery association. Jasper Rockwell was instructed to ascertain the probable cost of sidewalks for Lincoln avenue. A number of property owners have not laid their sidewalks and the borough may proceed to do the work, to later assess the cost.

Action was taken to the effect that a proposition be submitted to D. M. McCloskey, attorney for the Dowd estate, for a settlement for damages claimed by the latter people.

Following the meeting of council a committee consisting of Messrs. Rockwell, Shafer, Nebulung, Sloan and Gaskill from council made a computation of the amount of money due the borough by the Pittsburgh Railways company for paving work which the latter paid for. A previous computation had been made and this was found to be correct.

FACILITIES TO BE INCREASED THROUGH TANK IMPROVEMENTS

Macbeth-Evans Glass Company to Enlarge Furnace This Summer--Department to be Closed Brief While

With conditions "never better" a busy run is planned at the local plant of the Macbeth-Evans Glass company. The factory has been running up to its limit the year around and to increase facilities for the production of glass ware, improvements are being started now at the tank. These improvements will be finished probably in July, and will necessitate a closing of that part of the plant for three or four weeks. The entire factory will be closed for about 10 days to allow the annual stock-taking. In the tank department the furnace is to be enlarged. While there will be no substantial increase in the working force, the capacity will be increased largely. Later, it is probable, a large plant to care for its increasing trade. The close-down for stock-taking will occur the latter part of this month or the first of July, so as to take in the Fourth of July. At present about 1,500 people are employed at Macbeth-Evans plant. This is the largest factory of several owned by the company and ranks as Charleroi's biggest industry. The monthly pay roll averages $60,000 practically the year around.

RUMOR OF BIG COAL DEAL CONFIRMED BY JUDGE GARY

Steel Corporation Purchases Western Pennsylvania Coal Lands But Papers Are Not Yet Signed

Judge Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the U. S. Steel corporation in New York Monday confirmed the report published in the Mail about three weeks ago of a big coal deal with the Pittsburgh Coal company. Judge Gary said: "We have agreed to purchase 17,000 acres of coaling coal on about 35 years' time. The papers have not yet been signed."

Seven thousand of the 17,000 acres mentioned by the Steel corporation's head are owned by the Pittsburgh Coal company and are located in the Cornellsville region. The remaining 10,000 acres are owned by the River Coal company. The price consideration is said to be in the neighborhood of $18,000,000 a considerably smaller sum than was suggested at first as the possible cost to the Steel corporation. Of this great sum it is believed that about $10,000,000 will be paid for the Pittsburgh company's acreage and $8,000,000 for the River company's holdings. It is stated that the coal is wanted for the big new plant at Gary, Indiana. When this plant was constructed it was the intention to use the coal from the Illinois field. This coal, it is reported is found to be deficient in steam producing and coke qualities as compared with the Pittsburgh coal, and for that reason the corporation seeks to get a supply in the Pittsburgh district. When this deal is completed it is expected that mining developments and production will be given a big impetus in this district.

TWO MANY BALLS ARE BEING LOST

Church League Has Spent About $70 on Them Since Season Opened

At the weekly meeting of the Church Baseball League executive committee held Monday evening, a report was made that since the opening of the baseball season, about $70 worth of baseballs had been purchased many of which had been lost. Action was taken to employ two young men to look after them during each game. Balls are knocked over the fence and in many cases forthwith pocketed by outsiders. Arrests may be made if this thieving is not stopped.

Arrangements were made at the meeting also to observe "Booster" day, on June 19. On this date the Catholics and Methodists will play a game and an admission of 25 cents will be charged.

Names of players approved were Louis Brusa, with the Catholics, W. R. Fleming with the Lutherans, Wm. Donohue, with the Baptists, C. Rodgers and J. Fletcher with the Baptists. Releases approved were Harry Boyd and Samuel Simcox from the Baptists.

Bell Company to be Permitted to Lay Conduits Underground

FINES ARE HEAVY IN MAY

Burgess George W. Risbeck Reports Many Arrests for Last Month

An ordinance granting the Bell Telephone company the right to lay their conduits underground in the borough passed third and final reading of council last night, and upon the signature of Burgess George W. Risbeck, will become an ordinance. The ordinance was part of one presented some time ago by the company. The vote was 4 to 1 favoring the ordinance. The discussion of the ordinance and the hearing of reports of borough officials occupied considerable attention of council.

Burgess George W. Risbeck made one of the best reports he has ever made to council, money collected in fines and costs considered. He reported that during May 61 arrests had been made, and that the total amount of fines and costs imposed was $120,000, all but $19 being paid. Treasurer E. W. Hastings reported receipts including a loan of $5,000 of $5,947.94 for the month ending May 16. Disbursements were $4,162.48, leaving a balance in the treasury of $1,785.46. Tax Collector J. W. Mathias reported that he had turned over to the treasurer for 1910 taxes the sum of $197,50 and for 1909 taxes amounting to $133.61.

The clerk was instructed to make a complete report of all personal taxes for the year 1909 and to use every means to collect all property taxes for that year at once, to report to council within a few weeks.

The street commissioners and the borough clerk were instructed to notify property owners having bad sidewalks to repair them.

A petition presented by Seraphim Ulms, James Gee, John Leonard, and Peter Bernard for the opening up of Luella avenue from Third street to the foot of the hill toward Fourth street was placed in the hands of the street committee to investigate and report.

A WISE CHOICE.

Once again have the carping critics of Governor John K. Tener received a severe jolt in the appointment of Pittsburgh's council of nine members, which the new charter enacted by the recent Legislature provides. Governor Tener has selected a body of men noted for high character and personal integrity, as well as successful business qualifications. The list embraces some of the well known Pittsburghers in the highest ranks in banking, business and professional circles, the most of whom have been noted for their public-spirited citizenship and efforts for civic betterment. The choice was made both wisely and well.

The assertion was made that the Governor in making these appointments would play into the hands of the politicians, and for this reason the new charter, which gives the Governor the power to appoint the new council until the next election, was bitterly assailed. It was characterized as un-American and revolutionary for the Governor to appoint for a community their administrators of municipal affairs. It is a question if the people could have chosen so wisely as the Governor has in making his selection, and this remains to be tested when the elections take place in November. All that Pittsburgh has to do to attain civic righteousness is to continue along the lines of the pattern set for them by Governor Tener.

MORE MINING ACTIVITY.

The confirmation of the report that the United States Steel corporation will take over 15,000 acres of coking coal from the Pittsburgh Coal company and the Monongahela Coal and Coke company, is cheering news for this community, in which a part of the holdings are located. The natural inference of the impending deal is that the Steel trust is after the coal and coke lands because it has need of the products, and that being the case the development of the holdings which are now lying unproductive will mean more industrial and business activity for this section.

If, as stated, the coal and coke is needed for the big plant at Gary, Indiana, big developments are in store for this section. The Gary plant is the largest concern in the holdings of the big Steel trust, and as it is the most modern and up to date, it will undoubtedly be kept running in production. That would mean continuous coal mining and coke production in the new territory to be acquired. This makes the mining outlook for the Pittsburgh district more rosy for the future.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

"Forty Years in Baseball" is the title of a book written by Capt. A. C. Anson, former manager of the Chicago National League team which has just been published. The story is a narrative of the experiences of the veteran baseball player, and in it he tells how Governor John K. Tener happened to become a member of the Chicago National League team. Relating this part of the story Capt. Anson says:

"After I had sold Mike Kelly to Boston I was on the keen lookout for a pitcher to take his place, and finally settled on big Mark Baldwin of Pittsburgh, one of the jolliest and most companionable fellows in the business and at times a wonderful twirler, but uneven and easily rattled. All that season of 1887, whenever he had the opportunity—which was pretty often for I found Baldwin excellent company—he went on sounding the praises of a Pittsburgh friend who, he claimed, was the most phenomenal pitcher he ever saw. He said that this wonder's name was John K. Tener and that he worked at bookkeeping, pitching as an amateur whenever he had a holiday. I confess I didn't take much stock in the business but Mark was so confident and so persistent that I promised to look into the matter when I had occasion to visit Pittsburgh.

win's friend. Shortly afterward I happened to be in Pittsburgh—I don't remember that I went on that special business—and I tried to find Tener, but didn't succeed in finding him either at his home or at his place of business. On the day of my departure for home I missed my train, and, having a few hours on my hands, I proceeded to kill time by strolling about the suburbs.

"Toward the end of the afternoon I ran across a game of ball being played by amateur nines in a vacant patch somewhere on the outskirts of the city.

"I have always been greatly interested in amateur ball, and I joined the bunch that had collected to see the game. It didn't take me two minutes to become deeply interested in the young fellow who was twirling the ball.

"First of all, his unusual appearance arrested my attention. Tall and straight as an Indian, with arms that seemed to be longer even than his very long legs, he poised himself on the balls of his feet, raised his right hand high in the air and then went through with a series of evolutions that made me think of a juggler. Finally, after a dizzy whirl of the sphere grasped firmly with the two first fingers in the fashion afterward made famous by Amos Rusie, he let her go, and I realized right then and there that I, for one, couldn't have batted him without a lot of practice.

"I don't mind telling you that although I stood there and never took my eyes off the twirler until the game was called, I didn't succeed in getting wise to his curve. When it was all over and the boys were putting on their coats I strolled over to the bunch and asked the young giant how he did it.

"How do I do what?" he laughed. "Make that outcurve," I said.

"It's the easiest ever," he declared. "To make that outcurve, I grasp the ball firmly with my two first fingers. I make the ball curve with my thumb, which I bring up against the ball with a tight grip. Then I do a lot of stunts to fuddle the batter, and when I get ready to let her go I give a slight side motion to my hand with a decided snap to the wrist. In that way you can get as much speed with a curve as with a straight ball. Don't you think so?"

"I didn't express an opinion. What I did do was to ask him plump out how he would like to go to Chicago and play with the league team.

"First rate," he said. "But Captain Anson don't know what a good pitcher he hasn't got. I always could beat Mark Baldwin, and I hear he is doing big stunts out in Chicago. Perhaps I'll go out there some day and show the captain what I can do. Do you know him?"

"Slightly," I admitted. Then I added: "I know Anson well enough to offer you a position on the Chicago team. All you have got to do is to say 'Yes' or 'No' right now." He looked me over carefully from sole to crown and then, apparently satisfied that I had the goods, said: "Well, make it yes."

"I wanted him to go right away with me that night but he said he was a bookkeeper and couldn't leave his job without proper notice. We made the date for his appearance in Chicago, arranged about his salary and traveling expenses and then, as I was bidding him good evening it occurred to me that it might be convenient to have his name. When he told me that he was John K. Tener I was so amused over the whole business that I turned the trick by letting him know that he had been negotiating with the captain and manager of the Chicago club."

A Joke and a Law.

Tradition is that the babies corpus act was put on the English statute books as the outcome of a joke at the expense of a bulky lord. It was in the final division in the house of lords, and Lord Grey and Lord Norris were appointed tellers. Lord Norris was not attentive to his duties, and when a very fat lord came in Lord Grey counted the obese person for ten, at first as a joke; but, seeing Lord Norris had not observed the other noble lord went on with the miscount. By that means, says Bishop Burnet, a sufficient number of votes was secured, and the bill was passed. Long afterward the two lords took over the act from tradition.

Made Him Feel Older.

The late Archbishop Ryan illuminated every subject he discussed, and once at a banquet in Philadelphia he illuminated strangely the subject of old age.

"We ourselves," he said, "never seem to grow old. Our hearts remain young, and even our faces in the glass don't look old, as do our friends' faces. One day on Chestnut street a very withered and bent graybeard accosted me.

"Why," he said, "don't you remember me? We were classmates at Carlow college."

Archbishop Ryan paused, then added whimsically:

"I was taken aback. I was shocked. I knew he was my age, but I had no idea I was his."—Washington Star.

A Terrifying Hat.

When the French artist Benjamin Constant was traveling in Morocco he was invited by the sultan to present himself at court at Fez. The painter's first thought was in regard to his costume. "Court" in Europe was one thing; in Morocco it was likely to prove something different. There was nothing to do, however, but to wear his ordinary evening clothes. He was ignorant of the fact that the Moors look upon black garments as very vulgar, and it was only after his arrival that he learned his mistake. The courtiers smiled openly; worst of all, they sneered. The painter was a man of hasty temper, and suddenly, nettled by their insolence, he closed his opera hat and sprang it open in the faces of the jeering crowd. They scattered, yelling with surprise and fear. The sultan heard the noise and demanded the cause. After he had seen and examined the wonderful hat he gave this oracular opinion:

"If I had lived a hundred years in your country and adopted all your other customs I could never have brought myself to set on my head so hideous a contrivance as that!"

Painfully Explicit.

The proprietor of a certain hotel in Europe has noted on the following warning to his clients:

"Gentlemen who come in this hotel not say anything about their meals they will be charged for, and if they should say beforehand that they are going out to breakfast or dinner, and if they say that they not have anything to eat they will be charged, or unless they bring it to the notice of the manager, and should they want the manager for, and not any one else, and unless they not bring it to the notice of the manager, they will be charged for the least things not, according to hotel rate. And no fuss will be allowed afterward about it, and nothing will be allowed to deduct anything out of it."

After this explicit information there surely could be no excuse for misunderstanding.—Boston Globe.

Surprising the Bullock.

In times of crisis and worry a kind word has been known to have surprisingly good results. The unexpectedness of such a word is perhaps the secret of its force. A late book, "On the Wool Track," backs the moral with an anecdote.

A team was working on the Broken Hill road, and a bullock—the Beelzebub of the team—had gone obstinate, and the coach was passing. The whip was swinging, and some apt remarks were just forming on the back of the teamster's tongue when he caught sight of a clerical hat on the front seat and just in time thought better of it. He coughed politely.

"Ahem—Strawberry," he said, "proceed!"

To his obvious astonishment Strawberry proceeded.

The Indian's Vision.

More or less wonderful accounts have from time to time been given of the powers of vision possessed by savage races. During a British anthropological expedition to the Torres strait the visual faculty of the natives was carefully tested, and from these tests the conclusion was reached that the excellence of vision shown by the savages has a psychological origin—that is to say, it arises from knowing what to look for. When the civilized man acquires familiarity with the environment he can see as far as they can. Thus the power of an Indian to tell the sex of a deer at such a distance that distinguishing features like antlers were invisible was found to rest upon his knowledge of the peculiar gait of the male deer.—Scientific American.

Wondrous Tact.

As an example of graciousness and tact Matthew White tells in Munsey's Magazine of a London clergyman who was called on to address an audience of actors. Alluding to the better social status of the players, the clergyman said that in former days it was sometimes customary to brand them as vagabonds and bore a hole in their ears with an awl, that the citizens might thus be forewarned. "And who knows," the clergyman added, "but that it is a survival of an endeavor to hide this mark of indignity that causes some of the actors even today to wear their hair long?"

Bottles and Rags.

"Bottles and rags, bottles and rags!" called out a rag and bone man as he plied his calling.

"Why do you always put these words together?" asked a passerby.

"Because, madam," replied the man, courteously touching his hat, "wherever you find bottles you find rags!"—London Family Herald.

A Shellfish Thought.

"Funny, isn't it?"

"That what?"

"That when a fellow's affairs have reached the blue point he never declares that the world is his oyster!"—Judge.

The Ruthless Razor.

Lady Customer (in furniture shop)—What has become of those lovely sideboards you had when I was last here? Salesman (smirking)—I shaved 'em off, madam.

Sympathy.

Cora—Have you seen my new photographs, dear? Every one says they look exactly like me. Dora—What a shame! Can't you get another sitting?

NESTS IN COLONIES.

Homes of the African Grosbeaks as Big as a Native's Hut.

The biggest bird's nest in the world, not excepting the stork's, is built by the African grosbeak. It is really 100 nests or more bound together with closely interwoven sticks, vines and strands of coarse grass and is not built by a single pair of birds, but by a colony of them. It is of such enormous size that at a little distance it is often mistaken for one of the native huts built in the trees so frequently found in wild tropical countries where man eating animals abound, and the only way to sleep in safety is to "roost high."

The birds usually select a thorn tree, probably because of the protection afforded by the sharp, long thorns against marauders. All around the nest the roof of sticks, thatched with dry grass, projects to let the rain run off. A deep fringe of grass hangs from this cornice like a curtain to keep out any stray drops. These great nests are added to from year to year, each pair of mated birds building on the main nest. Sometimes the nest becomes too heavy, and the branch breaks or the great mass of sticks falls to the ground, destroyed by its own weight. The grosbeak is no larger than an English sparrow and just as gregarious.—New York Press.

Honesty Extraordinary.

A traveler writing in an Italian magazine says that the Swiss canton of Ticino is inhabited by the most honest folk it is possible to imagine. In most of the Ticinese villages, the writer says, the oldest inhabitants do not remember any case of thieving, however petty, within a lifetime. Lost objects when found must never be taken away; they must be left where they were dropped or placed in a conspicuous position so that the rightful owner can find his property more easily. The case is cited of an American woman tourist who lost her purse on an excursion in the Val Capriasca. The purse contained gold coin and a jeweled watch. Upon returning from her trip she found the purse with its contents intact on a little heap of leaves, so placed that it could not fail to attract her attention.—New York Sun.

The Parsees of India.

It was at a point near the ancient city of Surat that the Parsees first landed in India when driven out of Persia by their Mohammedan conquerors eleven centuries ago. Few things are more remarkable than the manner in which this small community has retained its religion and racial characteristics unchanged during that long period. The peculiar style of head-dress worn by the Parsees is said to have been made compulsory by the Hindu king of India when the Parsees first obtained refuge in that country, and they have used it ever since. Today the Parsees are the leading commercial nation of India.

Hanna and Tom Johnson.

"Let's shake hands and be friends," Mark Hanna suggested to Tom Johnson one day.

"No, let's not," Johnson answered. "Why not?" Hanna demanded.

"We'd make awfully poor friends. We're too good enemies."—Exchange.

PREPARED FOR DEFEAT.

Precautions General Taylor Took Before Meeting Santa Anna.

Santa Anna was the greatest military leader the Mexicans have ever known. Santa Anna, with 25,000 veterans, went into the battle of Buena Vista with the avowed purpose of exterminating the entire army of the United States, and there was no doubt in the mind of Santa Anna that this great feat could be accomplished with comparative ease. General Taylor, with his 5,000 men, prepared for the unequal contest, and not only defended himself successfully, but won a substantial victory from his aggressive antagonists and drove them from the battlefield of Buena Vista.

Some time after the battle was fought and the Mexican war concluded General Taylor was criticised for having made no preparations for the retreat of his army in the event of defeat. General Taylor promptly replied: "I made every preparation necessary for the battle of Buena Vista. I wrote my will, and so did nearly every man in my army. If we had not won that battle we would have needed no lines of retreat. It was, from our standpoint, victory or annihilation. The only preparation necessary for the contingency of defeat at Buena Vista was that we should write our wills."

MAN AND THE WORLD.

A Very Small Graveyard Would Hold the Whole Human Family.

How little mankind signifies in the scheme of nature is shown by a rather morose calculation of the Italian Professor Zuccarini, who has figured out, among other things, that estimating the world's population as 1,500,000,000 the whole human race at present living, could stand comfortably shoulder to shoulder in an area of 500 square miles.

Taking the number of generations in the past 6,000 years as 200, the room taken up by them all on the above plan would only be half the size of Germany, or for the sake of comparison less than the area of the state of Colorado. To bury all the people on earth would need a graveyard little larger than that area.

If the dust left by each body be estimated at one-tenth cubic yard, which is a liberal estimate, it would cover only forty square miles to a depth of about three feet. This certainly seems insignificant compared with the great coral reefs and other immense deposits built up by the shells of tiny infusoria.—New York Sun.

His Security.

When Eben Foster asked Squire Lane to lend him $200 to invest in the dry goods business the squire dryly inquired what Mr. Foster had to offer him in the way of security.

"Security?" said Eben, with an air of injured dignity. "Well, squire, I'll tell you what I have to offer—three solid silver teaspoons, a handsome brass warming pan, a pair of deerskin moccasins, a large size, and the material for as much as three feather beds. If not four, right on the backs of my dock of geese, an' five Plymouth Rock hens.

"You can call 'em all yours till I pay the money back, an' I'll take care of 'em for you free of charge. I don't know what anybody could want more'n that for security."—Youth's Companion.

The American Indian.

The old question of the origin of the red man of America is still an open one, the last word by no means having been said. The most probable theory is that which links the Indian with the Mongoloids of East Africa, whose physical characteristics are strikingly similar to those of the American aborigines. Between the Indian and the Japanese there are many pronounced resemblances, and some excellent authorities are of the opinion that it was from that eastern race that the Indian originally sprung. If, as some think, the Eskimos are the best representatives of the Indian as he was upon his arrival here, the theory of the Japanese origin is immensely strengthened, since the likeness between the Eskimo and the Japanese is striking indeed.—New York American.

Logic of the Land.

A specimen of rustic reasoning which is too good to lose is recorded in Mr. E. L. Gales' "Studies in Arcady." "A barber," he says, "was telling me with great gusto how he had refuted an atheist. I inquired what arguments he had employed.

"I asked the atheist," said the barber, "what portion of the Scriptures he based his ideas upon."

"What did he say to that?"

"Never a word."

"The defeat had been crushing and final."

Not Her Kind.

"Have you heard," asked Mrs. Oldcastle, "that Grace Moneylove has married an octogenarian?"

"Mercy sakes!" exclaimed Mrs. Justice. "Is that so? Well, he may be all right, but I want to tell you I've never seen a man who wouldn't eat meat that I'd live with."—Judge.

Not to Blame.

The mind ought sometimes to be amused that it may the better return to thought and to itself.

SEARCHLIGHT RAYS.

The Effect When the Beams Penetrate a Foggy Atmosphere.

Nearly everybody is familiar with the beam of a searchlight and knows why the beam is visible, while light itself cannot be seen unless it strikes the eye, its visibility being due to particles in the air which really do reflect the light to the eye. On a foggy night, if one will notice, the beam seems to come abruptly to an end if the light is pointed upward. It does this instead of gradually fading away into nothing, as it does pointed horizontally on a uniformly foggy night.

The thing is rather puzzling to one first seeing it, but the reason is not far to seek. Where the end of the beam seems to be there is the place the fog ends, for the beam cannot be visible to us unless there are small particles in its path. This is of great help to sailors in judging of the state of the weather, for they can tell exactly how thick the fog is, or, rather, how deep it is. They can also tell by throwing the light horizontally whether the fog is universal or occurring only in patches, for if extending to a great distance the beam gradually gets dimmer and dimmer, but if in patches the beam is lighter in patches, and if it goes through a place with no fog at all that part of the beam is black or invisible.—New York Tribune.

COFFEE AND TEA.

The Bean Improves With Age, While the Leaf Deteriorates.

Coffee beans improve with age. Five year old coffee is better than the new crop and fetches a higher price in the market. In two years coffee will lose 10 per cent in weight, but it will increase more than 10 per cent in price. Coffee should be used quickly after roasting. If the brown beans appear oily the oil should be dried off in a quick, hot oven; otherwise it will undergo a chemical change which will affect the flavor.

While coffee beans dry with age, teas absorb moisture even when in zinc lined chests. Tea likewise deteriorates with age. It doesn't lose strength so much as it does its drawing quality, which is another name for flavor or bouquet. So careful are the tea packers to insure an entire absence of moisture from the tea when being placed in the zinc or lead lined chests that they have the tea leaves sun dried and then heated before packing. The tea goes into the chests too hot to handle with bare hands and is sealed up in air tight packages before it has time to cool and before the slightest suggestion of moisture reaches it.—New York World.

A Word For Sugar.

Pure candy is good for children. Pure sugar is good for grown people. Of course there are exceptions to every rule. If the doctor prescribes a diet and orders a patient to refrain from sweets the patient is bound to obey his adviser. What is the use of calling a physician and paying him for suggestions if the latter are treated with indifference? People in ordinary health need not be afraid to gratify an appetite which craves sweets. Those who have looked into the matter have been telling us lately that soldiers on the march hold out better if they have rations of sugar than if their food omits this useful commodity. A fondness for sugar is often a defense against the temptation to use alcoholic stimulants. The inebriate does not care very much about pure sweets.—Christian Herald.

The Age of Linen.

It is highly probable that the manufacture of linens is of greater antiquity than that of silk. Archaeologists generally admit that the mummy cloth of the most ancient dynasties was a variety of finest linen. The Egyptian and Jewish priests wore it at all their ceremonies. We find mention of fine linens all through the Old and New Testaments. When the queen of Sheba visited Solomon she was habited in linen. In Revelation the angels are clothed in "pure and white linen." Genesis tells us that Pharaoh arrayed Joseph in vestures of fine linen. Silk is mentioned in the Bible only four times.

The Mystic Seven.

A certain fond father sent his son to the University of Pennsylvania last fall. As a farewell piece of advice he told the young man that "his success was almost assured, since both the word success and your name contain seven letters." The midyear examinations, however, proved to be his doom, and he was compelled to return home. "Well," said his father, "didn't you keep in mind what I told you about the seven letters?"

"I did that, father," answered the boy. "But you must remember that there are also seven letters in failure."—Philadelphia Times.

Money Panic.

"What was the worst money panic you ever saw?" asked one financier of another.

"The worst money panic I ever saw," was the reply, "was when a fifty cent piece rolled under the seat of a street car and seven different women claimed it."—Exchange.

Tyranny.

There are few minds to which tyranny is not delightful. Power is nothing but as it is felt, and the delight of superiority is proportionate to the resistance overcome.—Johnson.

Every production of genius must be the production of enthusiasm.—Disraeli.

JOHN BANISTER.

An English Violinist Who Won Fame in the Seventeenth Century.

Public concerts owe their direct encouragement to John Banister, who had won fame by his playing on the violin and who succeeded the celebrated Baltzar as leader of Charles II's band of twenty-four violins. Pepys, in an entry in his diary for February, 1667, tells us the court gossip of the day—"how the king's violinist Banister is mad that the king hath a Frenchman come to be chief of some part of the king's musique."

Banister's concerts at the close of the year 1672 were advertised in the London Gazette as follows: "These are to give notice that at Mr. John Banister's house (now called the music school), over against the George tavern in White Fryers, the present Monday will be music performed by excellent masters, beginning precisely at 4 of the clock in the afternoon, and every afternoon for the future precisely at the same hour."

Four years later on we read again, "At the academy in Little Lincoln's Inn Fields will begin the first part of the parley of instruments, composed by Mr. John Banister." The admission was at this time as a rule a shilling, and these concerts seem to have been held pretty regularly down to within a short time of Banister's death, which took place in 1679.—London Graphic.

The Peanut.

The common peanut originally came probably from tropical America. Peanuts were introduced into the United States in the days of the colonies. Botanically the peanut belongs to the same group of plants as beans and peas, but the peanut matures its fruit or nut under the surface of the soil, not above ground, as do most other leguminous plants. Properly speaking, the peanut is a pea rather than a nut, the term "nut" having been added on account of its flavor, which is similar to that of many of the true nuts. The peanut is known under the local names of goober, goober pea, pindar, groundpea and groundnut.

Greenland's Exclusiveness.

Greenland, with its icy mountains, is very exclusive, and so far from inviting visitors, it even makes it inconvenient for tourists to land on the little bit of occasionally green land that surrounds its great heart of perpetual ice. Permission must be had from Denmark. Denmark is, indeed, very careful and conservative in the management of Greenland affairs. The trade there is monopolized by the state, and only government vessels are welcomed to Greenland waters. This is to protect the Greenlanders from unscrupulous merchants. The state also fixes both the price they shall pay for food and the price they shall sell at.

Saves Time For His Wife.

They were discussing their husbands, neither of whom was distinguished for his domesticity.

"My husband amuses me," said the hostess, "by the excuses he has for being detained downtown of evenings. Sometimes I can almost hear his brain working out an excuse as he tiptoes up the stairs."

"My husband," said the caller, "is different. He is a very systematic man, you know, and some time ago he wrote out a list of various excuses and numbered them. Now, when he comes in he just calls up the stairs, 'No. 4' or 'No. 29' or whatever the number may be."—Judge.

ANIMALS' TOILETS.

Fur Seals Are as Particular as Women in Fixing Up.

The cat carries her clothesbrush in her mouth, for with her rough tongue she cleanses her glossy coat as a boy brushes off his clothes. She licks one of her front paws and rubs it over her face and she is ready for her break fast.

Foxes, dogs and wolves do not use their mouths when they need to wash and brush, but scratch themselves vigorously with their hind paws and are as fresh as ever.

The cow with her long, rough tongue combs her coat of hair until it is clean and curly. The horse more than any other animal depends on his owner to keep his coat in proper condition, but often he will roll on the green grass or rub himself down against a tree or fence.

Field mice comb their hair with their hind legs, and the fur seal in a similar manner spends as much time as a woman in making herself look smart.

Although the elephant appears to be thick skinned and callous, he takes great care of his skin. He often gives himself a shower bath by drawing water into his long trunk and blowing it on the different parts of his body. After the bath he sometimes rolls himself in a toilet preparation of dust to keep off the flies.—Our Dumb Animals

Robespierre's Style of Dress.

Robespierre's manner of dress, even at the period when the demagogues affected the slovenliness and disorder of indigence in order to flatter the people, was clean, decent and precise as that of a man who respects himself in the eyes of others. His white powdered hair, turned up in clusters over his temples; a bright blue coat buttoned over his hips, open over the breast to display a white vest; short yellow colored breeches, white stockings and shoes with silver buckles, formed his invariable costume during the whole of his public life. It was said that he desired by thus never varying the style or color of his garments to make the same impression in the sight and imagination of the people as a medal of his face would have caused.—Lamarque's "History of the Girondists."

The Bishop's Opinion.

"The late Bishop Whitaker," said a Philadelphia clergyman, "had very little sympathy with ultra high church leaning. A young divine once said to him at a Lenten lecture, 'Bishop, suppose I should burn a few pastilles during the service, do you think anything would happen?'"

"Bishop Whitaker smiled dryly, and passing his hand down his white beard, he answered:

"A good deal would happen, my young friend. Your congregation would be incensed, your vestrymen would fume, and it's more than likely that you yourself would go up in smoke."

The Family Cat.

"Under normal conditions," says Chicago's health commissioner, "all the epidemic and local diseases thrive upon the family cat. The woman who refuses to give her child a redhot poker as a toy has no hesitancy in putting into its arms the most dangerous plaything—the family cat. It is no difficult matter to quarantine the child sick with scarlet fever or diphtheria, but the family cat goes where it pleases and comes when it likes."

CHARLEROI PLAYERS MAKE GOOD IN OHIO

Arch Osborne and "Bob" Newton Have Things Hummin' at Lima

According to the Lima, Ohio papers Charleroi players who are with the Lima team are making things lively in the Ohio league. Arch Osborne, of Charleroi is manager and is pitching winning ball. He has gathered about him one of the strongest aggregations of ball tossers seen in Lima for some time, and is getting results.

"Bob" Newton, the son of "Squire" Newton is making good. "Bob" is capturing everything that comes his way down at third base. At bat he makes the pitchers work. Although sixth in the batting order, he is getting about as many real hits as the rest of them and they count too. "Bob" rarely fans the vacancy.

BASEBALL BINGLES

Manager Swearingen of the Lutherans chuckled after the down-pour Monday night over the fact that there were 12 Lutheran players in uniform on the field. "Such a hard working, enthusiastic bunch of boys surely deserve to win," said Manager Sam to a spectator.

Three postponed games are now to be played off in the Church League, including that of last night between the Lutherans and the First Presbyterians. The Lutherans seem to be the bad weather boys. The game between them and the Washington Avenues is another postponed game.

The game postponed by reason of a tie between the Baptists and the First Presbyterians will be played next Wednesday, June 14. On the following Wednesday, June 21, the Washington Avenues and the Lutherans are scheduled to play, and it is likely that the game postponed from last night will be set for June 27.

The Lutherans have a new battery—Hardland and Baker—which they intended to use Monday evening.

WILL HOLD SOCIAL AFFAIR AS BENEFIT

The Charleroi Juvenile Court committee, composed of Mrs. J. K. Tener, Mrs. E. C. Niver, and Mrs. A. W. Day will give a "500" party at the Elks Home Friday afternoon, June 9 at 2 o'clock. The object is to secure funds to defray the expenses of the committee in taking care of the delinquent children that come under the jurisdiction of the committee. The county pays only the expense of securing the commitment papers and transportation, but the expense of employing someone to take the children to court has to be borne by voluntary contribution. Scarcely a week passes that the committee does not have to incur expense in looking after waifs, and for this reason asks the public to patronize a worthy charity.

"THE FALL OF TROY" PICTURED AT STAR

As a special attraction Manager Tom Cowan of the Star Theatre has secured for Thursday afternoon and evening a $30,000 motion picture in two reels, "The Fall of Troy." This reproduction of the Trojan war is a replete with beautiful women, dashing chariot races, artistic statuary, massive palaces, regal costumes, all depicted in exquisite photography tinted and toned beyond compare.

With settings dazzling with grandeur, armored gladiators are shown in deadly conflict with the spectacular attack on the city. Great conflagrations, together with the capture of the wooden horse in which the attacking soldiers were concealed are shown. Graphically portrayed is the terror of the lovely Helen, the cause of the war, when her husband at the head of the avenging Greeks destroy the Trojans and slay Paris, the lover of Helen with whom she has eloped
